AMY C. WANINGER TO PRESENT IN SNHU CAREER CONNECTIONS WEBINAR SERIES

Waninger to speak on diversity in professional networking

Manchester, NH, December 15, 2017– Southern New Hampshire University (SNHU) has invited Amy C. Waninger to present in their Career Connections Webinar Series. The webinar will be broadcast live on Tuesday, January 23, 2018 at 8:00 pm. The session is open to SNHU students, alumni, and faculty, who can register online at <http://bit.ly/2kxfJXR>. Waninger’s educational session will help participants expand their professional networks with a focus on diversity and inclusion.

In an information economy, what you know is much less important to your career than who you know. Young professionals face a disadvantage because they are not as readily connected to hiring managers, mentors, and others who can propel them forward in their careers. Conversely, companies may struggle to capitalize on this critical talent pool. I look forward to helping emerging professionals build broad and deep networks so they can have broad and lasting impacts in their respective fields.
